The 3D Revit Templates & Inserts. Feb 13, 2020 @ 11:28AM by Mark Notti, FullRevit20103264Bit. A: You can make use of the DownloadURL property if you need to download your template to your local machine. For this, you need to use the method mentioned in the remark part of the paragraph "Install the templates on your local machine.". I have tried to download one of the Revit templates from the following URL: And found that the downloaded zip file contains the documents that you have mentioned in your question. If you need to install these templates to your local machine, you can follow this Microsoft Article For more details, you can look at the link provided below: Hope this helps! The use of internet technologies to inform patients about the risks associated with major therapeutic procedures. High-risk medical procedures, such as cardiopulmonary bypass, general anesthesia, and cardiac surgery, are associated with postoperative mortality of 3-10%. A strategy to educate patients about the risks associated with these procedures is therefore essential, and the primary aim of this study was to evaluate patient knowledge and awareness of risks associated with these high-risk procedures. The patient group comprised patients with documented coronary artery bypass grafting or valvular surgery at the Department of Cardiothoracic and Vascular Surgery, Aarhus University Hospital, Denmark. In addition to a standard questionnaire, information about the risk of developing adverse events after the procedure was provided online to all patients by means of an interactive internet site. All eligible patients were invited to participate. The information given to the patients consisted of a short presentation with a maximum length of 5 min. The presentation was based on the latest official guidelines, and a peer-reviewed publication was used as a supplement to the presentation. A total of 83 (32%) of the 250 patients approached agreed to participate, and 80 completed the questionnaire. The majority of these patients already had a better understanding of the risks associated with cardiac surgery (97%) than with coronary artery bypass grafting (81%) and valvular surgery (76%) (P
